had furned to the United States and in Western fields for a livelihood. La Chapelle died suddenly in Chicago, and soon after this event, Senator Clark decided to extend financial assistance to the family, not for Anna La Chapelle alone, but for her widowed mother and the children. He was introduced to Mrs. Chapelle and thus met her children. He recognized that Anna was a girl endowed with unusual intelligence. Senator Clark made the girl his ward soon after this, and provided her with the opportunities for such tuition as he considered she should have. It was an education that began in the seminaries in this country and was finished in schools abroad where the climax came with the opportunities for extensive travel. Mrs. Clark is at present in Paris.
